Tom Clark's Son Gets Justice Dept. Post

President Kennedy yesterday named three new Assistant Attorneys General, including the son of Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark to head the Justice Department's Land Division.

The President announced he would appoint Ramsey Clark, 33-year-old son of the jurist, to the $20,000-a-year Lands Division post. He also named:

Herbert J. Miller Jr., a 37-year-old Republican practicing law here and living in Potomac, Md., as assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division.

Lee Loevinger, 47, of Minneapolis, an associate justice of the Minnesota Supreme Court, as assistant attorney general in charge of the Anti-trust Division.

Miller and Loevinger also will receive $20,000 a year.

Clark, a native and resident of Dallas, attended the University of Texas before receiving a masters degree in political science and a doctors degree in juridical science from the University of Chicago.

Miller, a native of Minneapolis, attended both the University of Minnesota and George Washington University, graduating from the latter institution's law school in 1949.

Loevinger who was born in St. Paul and now resides with his family in Minneapolis, graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1933 and from its law school in 1936.

The President also chose

William B. Macomber Jr., now Assistant Secretary of State for Congressional Relations, to be ambassador to Jordan. Macomber, 39, will succeed Sheldon T. Mills.

Macomber, a Marine Corps veteran and graduate of the Harvard Law School served from 1951 through 1953 with the Central Intelligence Agency. He also is a former administrative assistant to Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky.).

[President Kennedy, it was learned, has also selected John S. Rice, 62-year-old Secretary of State of Pennsylvania, to be the new Ambassador to the Netherlands. The Dutch government is expected shortly to give its agreement to the appointment.

[Rice, whose home is in Gettysburg, was the unsuccessful Democratic nominee for Governor in 1946. He has served as a State Senator and as a member of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Commission. He has the endorsement of Gov. David L. Lawrence and of Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.).]

Mr. Kennedy announced yesterday that 13 more Ambassadors, all career diplomats, have been asked to remain at their posts. They are:

Austria, H. Freeman Matthews; Brazil, John M. Cabot; Bulgaria, Edward Page Jr.; Cambodia, William C. Trimble; Republic of Congo (Brazzaville), W. Wendell Blanche; Czechoslovakia, Christian M. Ravndal; Ecuador, Maurice M. Bernbaum.

Haiti, Robert N. Newbegin; Lebanon, Robert McClintock; Malagasy Republic, Frederick P. Bartlett; Republic of Mali, Thomas K. Wright; Nepal, Henry E. Stebbins; and the Somali Republic, Andrew G. Lynch.

The President submitted to the Senate for confirmation the names of eight other persons whose appointments were announced previously.

They were: Henry R. Labouisse to be Director of the International Cooperation; Charles F. Baldwin to be Ambassador to Malaya; Douglas MacArthur II to be Ambassador to Belgium; George F. Kennan to be Ambassador to Yugoslavia; David K. Bruce to be Ambassador to Great Britain; Bernard Gufler to be Ambassador to Finland; Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, Ret., to be Ambassador to France, and Raymond A. Hare to be Ambassador to Turkey.

Meanwhile, the Senate gave speedy and unanimous confirmation to President Kennedy's nomination of Paul Burgess Fay Jr. as Under Secretary of the Navy.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday approved the nomination of Livingston T. Merchant to be Ambassador to Canada.

Also approved unanimously after a hearing were the nominations of three Assistant Secretaries of State — Brooks Hays for congressional relations, Harlan Cleveland for international organization affairs, and William J. Crockett for administration.
